

“I have worked with Karen Bale and the students on the NCTJ course at Clyde College for the last 4 years and have been very impressed with both the care taken in preparing the course and the enthusiasm of the students.

The emphasis is very much on real-world experience and encourages the students to think cross-platform and commercially.

I always look forward to informed debate and probing questions from highly engaged students when I visit. I would have no hesitation in recommending the NCTJ course to my colleagues as a source of well-prepared talented would-be modern journalists.”
