

Glasgow Clyde College is proud to be Glasgow Living Wage employer.

The Glasgow Living Wage was originally launched in 2009 by Glasgow City Council to tackle in-work poverty. This standard generally means that a person working full-time, with no additional income, should be able to afford a specified quality or quantity of housing, food, utilities, transport, health care, and recreation.

As well as the clear financial benefits for employees, research has shown that the introduction of a living wage in other parts of the UK has provided employees with more job satisfaction and encouraged them to remain with their employer.

The Glasgow Living Wage has increased from £9.50 per hour to £9.90 per hour from 1st of April 2022
